The U.S. based media technology company, Blu Digital Group, has acquired the Danish technical audiovisual service company, Dicientia Studios, which specializes in content distribution, localization, and post-production service for the European market.

The acquisition of Dicientia Studios is strategic and will expand Blu Digital Group's media distribution services, and position the combined group as a major provider of media management, software, localization and distribution services, and post-production services, handling all aspects of the value chain from content to market.

The sellers were advised by a DLA Piper team consisting of Karsten Pedersen, Ida Boysen and Andreas Frandsen.
